After that, Gillian went to a dance school and it was wonderful. There were many children at the school just like Gillian. They all needed to move in order to think. They did many kinds of dance including tap, jazz, ballet, modern and contemporary. Gillian became a very successful dancer. She helped create some very successful musical theater productions and she became very wealthy.
Her mother took Gillian to see a special doctor. Gillian's mother talked to the doctor for 20 minutes. She told the doctor about all the problems Gillian was having in school. Her mother explained that Gillian was bothering other people and she turned in her homework late. Then the doctor told Gillian he needed to speak to her mother privately, and the doctor and Gillian's mother went outside.
1	Sir Ken Robinson has a friend called Gillian. One day, they were having lunch, and he asked her why she became a dancer. Gillian said she had a lot of problems in school when she was little. She couldn't concentrate or sit still, so the school thought Gillian had a learning disorder.
Before he left the room, the doctor turned on the radio. After they left the room, the doctor and Gillian's mom watched Gillian. Gillian immediately started to dance to the music. The doctor told Gillian's mom: "Gillian isn't sick. She's a dancer. Take her to dance school."
